School district faces March 9 strike deadline

By BOBAMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

A teacher strike looms in the Romulus Community Schools unless bargaining talks for a new contract are resolved by March 9, said a spokesman for the teachers union Monday.

Al Gaiss, staff director for United Service to Teachers (UNISERV), said four of the 14 school districts served by his organization have been targeted for strike action, if contract settlements are not reached by March 9.

The four districts are Romulus, Southgate, Gibraltar and Woodhaven, he said.

Last May the 14 school districts banded together to form Wayne County-Michigan Education Association-National Education Association (WC-MEA-NEA) with the agreement that UNISERV would help with contract negotiations.

"We believe it is time to settle," Gaiss said. "We don't want to strike, but we will, if no settlement is reached in the four targeted districts."

However, the Romulus school district said Monday it has not been notified of the impending strike.

Terry LeCesne, director of employee relations and personnel, commented, "We have not received any official notice from WC-MEA-NEA Romulus of any strike."

He explained that the Romulus school district and the teachers group have an agreement to continue working on "a day-to-day basis" under the old contract.

"Included in that agreement,"

LeCesne explained, "is a 48-hour advance notice of a termination of that agreement by either side."

LeCesne said contract talks have narrowed down to those involving economics and that the school district was hopeful that a new contract agreement would be reached soon.

Gaiss explained that of the 14 districts in WC-MEA-NEA, only two — Westwood in Dearborn Heights and Allen Park — have agreed on new teacher contracts.

Of 260 school districts across the state the bargained for new contracts, only 23 have not settled and WC-MEA-NEA has 12 of them, Gaiss emphasized.

"None of the 14 school districts in WC-MEA-NEA have struck since 1974 with the exception of Woodhaven," he added. "We don't look at strikes lightly, but we've been meeting in contract talks about 20 to 25 times since last July."

He stressed that if contract agreements have not been reached by March 9, teachers in four targeted districts, including Romulus, are scheduled to strike beginning on the morning of March 10.

Holding up a new contract in all four school districts, Gaiss said, are cost of living, economic proposals and class size.

"The Romulus school board's latest economic offer has not been in double digits, and that's a problem," he explained.

District director of WC-MEA-NEA Romulus is Chris Powers, while chief negotiator for the Romulus teachers is Jerry Bird.

Taking shape

Gradually, the senior citizens' complex, the Romulus Towers, is beginning to take shape. Slowed by winter weather, construction crews have been able to complete much of the exterior work on the first floor of the multiple-story structure. The new housing complex will be located at the corner of E 55th and S 1st streets. — ANP photo.

Census official stresses importance of 'nose count'

Two high-ranking officials of the U.S. Bureau of the Census Thursday told the Western V Community Conference board session of the importance of the coming population count this year and outlined various ways to publicize the effort.

Bill Shreck of the Detroit district office for the bureau explained that census information is exempt from the Freedom of Information Act. He said that he himself could not gain access to census files.

Shreck said the census bureau will employ one enumerator for every 550 residents of every community across the nation. He said Western V soon will be sending census information material to all area residents.

Chris Williams of the Washington, D.C., office of the Census Bureau, said the bureau now is prepared to present proposals that he said were "equal to or better" than those now planned by member communities of Western V. The board voted to endorse Guenther's presentations in an effort to save on costs.

In other business, the Western V board set March 5 as the tentative date for a talk by Harold Horn, director of Cable Television Information Center, Washington, D.C. He will discuss advantage of cable television for the local area, said Henry Redman, Western V director.

Virginia Melcher, director of September Day senior citizens organization for the area, explained a program whereby Western V could apply for a federal grant to establish a 5-van pool for transportation of senior citizens.

The board directed Redman to investigate the matter.

Also discussed was the possibility of Western V administering the new police communications network for Belleville and the townships of Van Buren, Sumpter and Canton.

According to Redman, if the network is not in operation by the April 1 deadline, funding could be lost for its operation, and member communities using the service might have to pay back costs for communications equipment already purchased.

Briefly discussed was the City of Detroit's decision to separate itself from the Detroit-Wayne County Area on Aging.

Community officials present for the board's regular monthly meeting were chairperson Pat

Tax bill extended deadline

The deadline for payment of winter taxes has been extended for Romulus residents until Feb. 29, with some extensions being granted until April 30, said Treasurer Beverly McAnally.

Recent action by Romulus City Council extended the Feb. 14 deadline.

Those who may pay winter taxes without penalty up to April 30 are senior citizens, those who are permanently disabled, paraplegics, quadriplegics, blind, eligible servicemen, eligible veterans and widows of eligible veterans.

Although taxes can be paid at the city hall through Feb. 29, residents who have filled out proper forms for the allowed deferment can make payments to the County Treasurer, 908 City-County Building, Detroit.

Foster home will get city building permit

A special meeting called last Wednesday night by Mayor William M. Oakley informed Romulus residents that a building permit would be issued by the city for construction of an adult foster care home on Tobine Road.

The mayor called the special session because many of the residents who attended a hearing on the adult foster care home a week earlier had left under the impression that it would be 60 days before another application for the facility would be requested.

At that meeting, residents were told that the first application was not approved and had been withdrawn. But, two days later applications were made to the city building department for permits for two single-family houses, one on Tobine Road and one on Hollywood Street, according to Hyle Carmichael, the city's industrial coordinator and head of the building department.

Carmichael said applications were made by Sun Craft Builders of South Lyons, Mich.

He told Sun Craft it would have to wait for the building permits until after Wednesday's meeting to inform local residents of their application. He said the building firm was scheduled to come in for the permits Monday.

At last Wednesday's special meeting, the mayor and David Boyd, representing the State Department of Mental Health, told some 40 city residents that the city had no choice and must issue the permits as required by law.

"The city cannot deny a building permit for a single-family home to be used for an adult foster care home in an area zoned for that category of construction," Carmichael explained.

Proposed construction of the adult foster care home on Tobine Road had stirred up considerable opposition among residents of the area, 100 of whom had signed a petition to that effect.

Efforts to stop the building of the home were spearheaded by Gerald and Nancy Gomes, primarily because of the type of patients who may be housed there.

Finding themselves up "against a stone wall" and because communities in which adult foster care homes are built are powerless to stop them, the Gomes said they may move to another community.

VB clerk rapped on home notification

A Van Buren Township trustee's letter to the state attorney general questioning possible negligence by the township clerk in notifying the township board and local residents of two new adult foster care homes has been rapped by the clerk.

Trustee Tom Welty's letter, sent Feb. 20 to Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, cited Clerk Doreen Craven for failing to notify residents and the township board of the first adult foster care home at 43812 Robson Road last June.

Welty's letter said the clerk apologized for not notifying residents and the board before she returned signed documents to the State Department of Social Services. But, his letter to Kelley said the clerk only notified some of the residents about the proposed second adult foster care home at 12300 Hannan Road and that township board members had to read about the facility in the local newspaper.

Craven last Friday explained that she had complied with guidelines set by the state for applications for adult foster care home licenses.

"As the clerk, whose sole responsibility rests in this matter, I chose the chronological order pertaining to this adult foster care facility."

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Welty's nose is out of joint since he was not notified first," she said.

Under state law, the clerk of a community in which an adult foster care home is planned must notify the local governing agency and all residents living within 1,500 feet of the proposed location of the home.

Craven said she had notified some 75 township residents of the adult foster care home proposed at Hannan and Price roads and had written the Romulus city clerk. She explained that it was his duty to send out letters to Romulus residents living within 1,500 feet of the site of the adult foster care facility.

The home's location is on the west side of Hannan Road, which is the border between the township and the City of Romulus.

Craven insisted she had fulfilled all of the requirements set down by the state for license applications for adult foster care homes.

In his letter to the attorney general, Welty stated: "My concern is not that the homes are to be located in Van Buren Township, but that citizens and board members have not been given the advance notice that would enable them to register reasonable opposition, suggest alternate sites that might better meet the needs of the residents of these homes, or to provide any other pertinent information to the Department of Social Services."

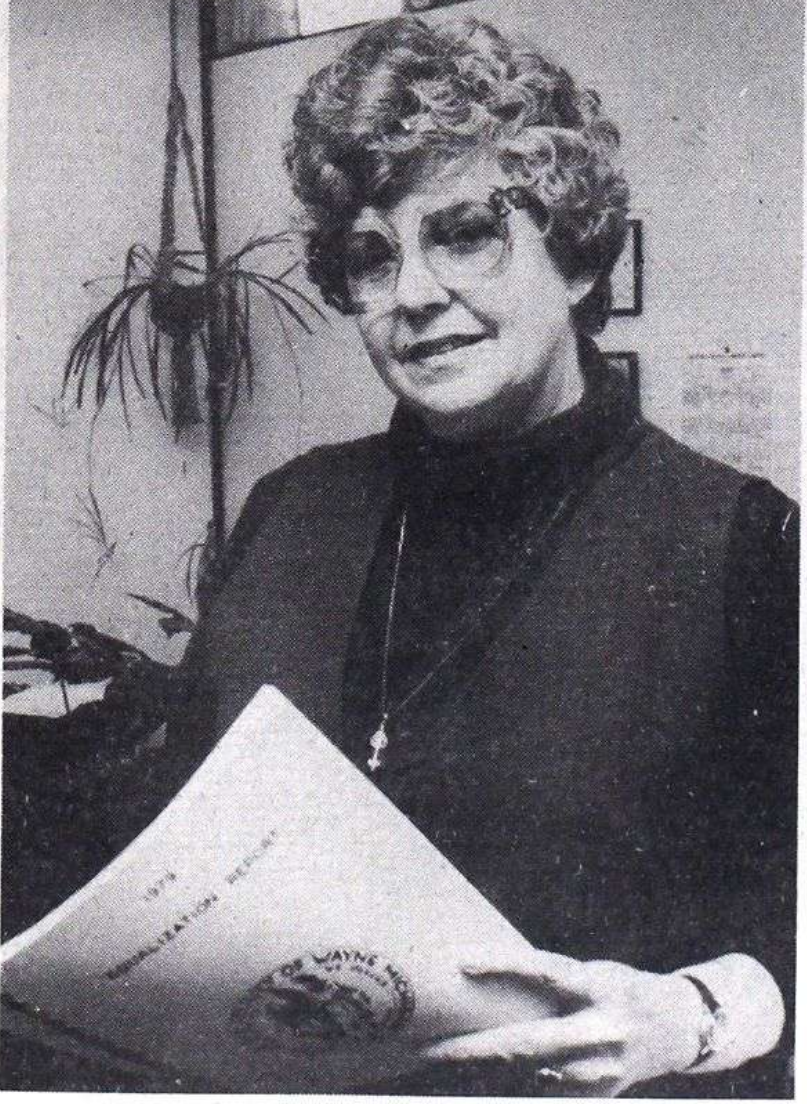

He concluded his letter by asking the attorney general what the clerk's legal responsibilities are in the matter and if there was evidence of any negligence of duty on her part.

In recent months, some residents of both Van Buren and Romulus and others throughout the state have opposed establishment of adult foster care homes in their communities. Reasons have ranged from resistance to the type of patients housed to not meeting zoning requirements for the general area.

Filtering through the hearings generated by the complaints is the fact that local communities have no say in whether an adult foster care home will or will not be located in their area.

At a recent Romulus council session, a representative of the State Department of Mental Health told council and the audience that there was little residents could do to keep an adult foster care facility out of their community.

He also admitted that the Northville State Hospital is being phased out and that patients are being farmed out in small groups in adult foster care homes throughout the area.

On the job

Romulus Treasurer Beverly McAnally looks over copy of equalization report from Wayne County which tentatively boosted city's property equalization factor by 6 percent. She said she was not notified of the increase until recently, although City Assessor

Dave Krause, who resigned two weeks ago, knew about the hike last December. Romulus City Council voted to protest the factor's hike to the county. The increase would result in higher taxes for Romulus residents. — ANP photo.

Some Riverside School students in Huron Township are sporting new embroidered patches on their jeans and jackets. The new patches were earned by entering a contest sponsored by the volunteer organization, Keep Michigan Beautiful Inc. of Farmington.

Each youngster designed a patch conveying the message of anti-vandalism toward school buildings and school grounds.

The first-place winner was Doug Smith, a sixth grader from Ithaca, Mich., whose winning design shows a gloved hand "rubbing out" vandalism. Second place was earned by Steve Antles, a Martin, Mich., fifth grader. Winner of third place was Allegan, Mich., sixth grader, Rhonda Roberts.

Keep Michigan Beautiful, Inc. places great emphasis on instilling in youngsters a feeling of pride in their schools and by becoming more aware of the part they all can play in keeping a watchful eye against vandalism.

Ten Huron school system art students received recognition recently for their works in the scholastics art competition at the Southfield Tel-Twelve Mall.

Competing against 106 schools in Wayne and Oakland County, Huron won honors in five categories. The show drew some 4,000 entries from lower Michigan. Only 20 percent of these were selected for exhibition.

Several of the 10 Huron entries received exhibitor awards. Kevin Shaffer, Dwayne Russow and Dolores Drouillard received blue ribbons. Their works are exhibited in a special blue ribbon show at Wayne State University through March 5.

Tigris Supper Club faces sexual harassment charge

Tigris, the plush new $1 million restaurant and supper club which opened its doors in Romulus Dec. 14, 1979 is being charged by four discharged waitresses with unfair working conditions and sexual harassment on the job.

Bill Holmes, assistant director of the enforcement bureau of Michigan Department of Civil Rights, last week confirmed that the charges had been filed with his department on the previous day.

Holmes told the Roman that he could not divulge the names of the four Tigris employees who filed the charges.

He said the respondent (Tigris) would be given a chance to reply to the charges, adding that his department will review the evidence before making any decisions.

Holmes explained that, depending on the evidence, an agreement could be worked out between the four waitresses and the Tigris, possibly resulting in reinstatement of their jobs.

"There are a variety of options," he said.

The Tigris is owned by George Yousuf, who also goes under the name of George Kashat, and who operates the Kashat Accounting and Tax Service in Southfield. He is a native of Iraq who came to the United States in 1951.

Mary Ann Hayosh, who serves as manager of the Tigris, admitted the four waitresses no longer work at the new supper club.

She said one of the waitresses, Jennifer Shaffer, who had appeared form some "favors" for him. When she asked what the favors were, she said he touched her body, prompting her to leave.

Shaffer reportedly was scheduled permit female employees at the restaurant "to work in that atmosphere".

"The girl (Shaffer) obviously is sick," she asserted.

The manager, in commenting on why the four waitresses had been let go, said one was laid off for "lack of business", a second was discharged for "bad service", a third dismissed because "she was too good for the Tigris and who spread gossip", and Shaffer, who she said, "let herself go".

Mrs. Hayosh said Shaffer told her that her husband did not want her working at the Tigris.

Since opening, the Tigris has lost nine of its original 11 waitresses.

Police arrest 5 in raid of Sumpter 'chop shop'

By BOBAMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Five adults were arrested and hundreds of thousands of dollars in stolen vehicles and parts confiscated Friday night as 32 sheriff's deputies, FBI agents and automobile experts raided an illegal "chop shop" operation in Sumpter Township.

Arrested near Clark and Savage roads were four men and a woman driving up to the scene in a stolen car, said Lt. Thomas Harrett, who headed the long-planned raid for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

He said the woman, who had young children in the car, was released at the scene and would be arraigned in 34th District Court in Romulus. The four men were released the following morning and also were scheduled to be arraigned in the same court, possibly yesterday, he said.

Recovered from five houses south of Savage Road on Clark Road were 15 stolen cars and 4-wheel drive vehicles, a motor home, a front-end loader and thousands of automobile parts, Harrett said.

The officer said law enforcement authorities had been seeking the location of a chop shop in Western Wayne County for several years. Tips fed in by informants over the last few months led police from Taylor to Romulus and finally to Sumpter Township, Harrett explained.

Taking part in the raid were 25 members of the Sheriff's Department, three FBI agents, two members of the National Automobile Theft Bureau, a detective from the Taylor Police Department and an identikit expert from the AAA Insurance Company.

Harrett said FBI agents are probing the possibility that Sumpter chop shop operation is tied in with interstate traffic in stolen cars, vehicles and parts.

He said the 32-man force converged on the Clark and Savage roads vicinity about 10 p.m. Friday armed with search warrants. 7 warrants gave them authority search all five houses at two of nine residences, he added.

"I can't help but believe that there are other chop shops in Wayne County. I can't believe this is the only one," Harrett said.

He said police are working on leads that are believed to be tied in with other chop shops in the area. He said he believed most of the stolen vehicles were stolen in Wayne County.

Harrett explained that some of the vehicles are stolen to fill orders placed for them by individuals, while those not ordered are cut apart and resold.

"The thieves cruise around until they see the type of vehicle ordered, find the right time to steal it," he said.

Harrett said names of the five adults arrested could not be divulged, pending their arraignment on a variety of charges.

Award winners

Seventeen awards were collected by 113 Romulus Senior High School Business and Office Education (BOEC) members at regional competition in Ann Arbor Feb. 9. Twenty-four members competed with students from 18 other schools in various areas such as accounting, records management, spelling, steno, typing, job interviewing and speech. Diane Meyer, Romulus chapter advisor, said: "Students are encouraged to participate in order to develop skills and leadership qualities necessary for success in their career goal." Club activities together with the block program and the office co-op experience provide community employers with qualified office personnel upon graduation. Preparations are now being made for these winners to compete at the eight annual State Convention at the Renaissance Center March 13 — 15. In addition to the competition, students will participate in general sessions, workshops, tours, and an awards banquet. Awards winners included Jennifer Mitton (front row, from left), Lorie Willoughby, Pam Massicotte, Regina Johnson, Anita Cobb (back row, from left), Teresa Fyfe, Cindy Claxton, Cheryl Snr, Kimberlisa Young, Joni Braithwaite and Gail Rutherford. Not pictured are Cindy Shellman and Valerie Woodson.

Apocalypse when?

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

Apocalypse now? Well, maybe not right now. But how about apocalypse soon? Do you believe THAT?

Periodically, throughout history, great numbers of people have looked for the apocalypse — the end of the world accompanied by the catastrophic events prophesied in the books of Daniel and Revelation in the Bible.

But probably never before have so many people believed we are living in the Last Days. Bible believers see — in the world events taking place in the Middle East — a fulfillment of ancient prophecies concerning the end of the world.

The number of believers in "apocalypse soon" has been augmented by people who ordinarily put no credence in Bible prophecy. They see a threat of a nuclear holocaust hanging over the world, and that has made believers out of them.

Most Bible believers associate the apocalypse with the Second Coming of Christ. Jews do not believe that Christ was the long-awaited Messiah foretold by the prophets. They are still looking for a Messiah to come.

Recently, some Jewish scholars in Israel have been saying that inflation and the Middle East turmoil are signals of the imminent appearance of the Messiah. The Gemara, an ancient Jewish Biblical commentary, says severe price rises are a sign of the Messianic era. Inflation in Israel now is well over 100 percent annually.

Jewish tradition says the coming of the Messiah will be preceded by "the war of Gog and Magog" — an invasion of Israel from the north. Many believe aggression by the Soviet Union — from the north — will be a prelude to the fierce fighting that will herald the Messiah's arrival.

Billy Graham, since the beginning of his evangelistic ministry, has been telling his followers that the Second Coming is near, although he no longer pinpoints the date as he did in 1950.

"We may have another year, maybe two years, to work for Jesus Christ," he said that year. "And then, ladies and gentlemen, I believe it's going to be all over."

That was 30 years ago. Today Graham will only say that "Our Lord gave a summary of events that would signal his return and the end of the world as we know it. He named conditions that would prevail. Reading them one must be struck by their resemblance to what we see daily on our TV screens and in our newspapers."

Some of the Bible "signs" Graham sees taking place are "wars and rumors of wars ... famine ... earthquakes ... multiplied lawlessness and iniquity ... and the return of the Jews to their homeland."

Despite the revival of interest in the apocalypse and the Second Coming, the majority of modern-day Christians probably do not believe that Jesus will ever return to earth in the flesh. Why don't they?

There are several reasons. Most of them don't put any stock in Bible prophecies or, if they do, they interpret them only in the broadest sense.

They might, for example, accept the idea that the world will come to a catastrophic end but they would rule out the possibility of "the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven" as an accompanying event.

Bible scholars point out that the expectation of a great crisis in history — when the heathen kingdoms would be overthrown and the Jewish nation restored — had been a favorite theme in Jewish thought for centuries.

In the circle in which Jesus moved, men's minds were occupied with lurid and fantastic descriptions of events which would occur when the present age gave place to the age to come.

Most moderns dismiss such imagery as primitive and the product of a time in which it would not be unusual for people to believe such things.

As for Jesus' own views, Bible scholars are not in agreement. Some feel that Jesus shared the views of his contemporaries about the end of the world. They looked for the end to come within the lifetime of those then living.

Other scholars feel that Jesus believed the Kingdom of God would come not by catastrophic event but by the gradual transformation of the human heart and soul.

Whether Graham and other fundamentalists are right about the imminence of the end of the world, he is right about this. People are interested in the subject more than they have been in any other generation up to this one.

On the road to the White House: Part Two

By DAVID M. MAXFIELD
Smithsonian News Service

Some presidential elections, like some candidates, make more of an impression than others. In fact, only a few of the 48 races for the White House are viewed by political historians as truly pivotal in the country's history.

Included in this group are well-known campaigns: Jefferson's candidacy in 1800, Lincoln's in 1860 and Franklin Roosevelt's quest for the presidency in 1932. But other elections you might consider obscure are cited by historians at the Smithsonian Institution as crucial to the country's political course.

For example, the campaign of 1824, a bitter contest, set the scene for populist Andrew Jackson's election 4 years later. The 1840 election draws historian's attention because new campaign styles swept the nation. And election year 1896 is chosen because William Jennings Bryan carried his call for economic reforms to the voters through 29 states via the first major whistle-stop campaign.

Each of the critical elections shared one or more characteristics, according to the historians:

—A momentous political or economic event which shaped the election and later national policies, such as the Great Crash in 1929 that propelled the United States into the Depression and led to Roosevelt's election.

—A significant shift in national political convictions or dissatisfaction with existing political leadership, as illustrated by the Republicans' return to the White House after 20 years of Democratic control.

—The emergence of major and emotional issues, including those raised when Richard M. Nixon faced Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968 during the Vietnam War.

—The appearance of a new political leader, as in 1960 when John F. Kennedy squared off against Nixon.

The critical elections of the 19th century set many political precedents that are still followed today, including the 2- (sometimes 3- and 4-) party system. But in the nation's first presidential election, there was no real contest or politicking for office. In fact, there were no formal party organizations, no primaries, no nominating conventions, no campaigning, no national balloting and no opinion polls. Washington received a unanimous 69 votes from the first electoral college in 1789.

Washington and the other founding leaders believed political parties arose only when political institutions themselves were defective.

"If we mean to support Liberty and Independence which it has cost us so much blood and treasure to establish," Washington said in 1790, "we must drive away the demon of party spirit and local reproach."

But a government of men was bound to create partisan divisions, and these became visible during the contest in 1800 between President John Adams, fighting for reelection, and Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson's themes of decentralized government, agrarianism and individual liberties carried the election over Adams' call for continued leadership by an educated, land-holding elite.

The election was significant, not only because of debate on such issues as centralized government—debate that continues today—but also because presidential campaigning and the 2-party system were set in motion. The Jeffersonians organized campaign committees at the state and local levels, published partisan newspapers and circulated election pamphlets; Adams' Federalists, according to Smithsonian authors of "If Elected..." were "too busy fighting among themselves to launch much of a campaign."

Personal abuse and name-calling, another staple of American politics, first appeared in the 1800 campaign, but did not flourish until the election of 1828, which matched Andrew Jackson against John Quincy Adams. Jackson, known to his admirers as "Old Hickory," appealed to the western frontier settlers.

Adams represented the aristocratic link to the nation's founders. "John Adams who can write and Andrew Jackson who can fight" acidly stated one of Jackson's slogans.

In some ways, the 1828 campaign was a bitter re-run of the controversial election 4 years earlier in which Jackson won a plurality of the popular voter, but lacked the necessary electoral college majority. The election, decided by the House of Representatives, went to Adams, and Jackson spent the next 4 years accusing his rival of influence peddling and arranging a "corrupt bargain" to win in 1824.

Whatever the truth of the matter, appearances were convincing, and these events became the major issue in the 1828 election, which added new intensity to campaigning.

"Until 1828, the contests were quite reserved," says Herbert Collins, curator of political history at the Smithsonian's National Museum of History and Technology, "but the election that year shifted politics from the parlors to the streets."

"The Jacksonians were angered," Collins adds. "They were going to try an emotional appeal, reaching the grassroots through party organization and popular demonstrations." The first mass-oriented presidential campaign thus got underway.

But in terms of sheer extravagance, the election of 1840 easily surpassed the previous 11 elections. The campaign was dominated, not by the complicated banking issues of the day, but by the

5. Adjournment

Mr. Soave came before the Board with his request to operate 7 days a week, 24 hours a day to be available for the hauling of sludge from the City of Detroit on a standby basis. He explained the seven day operation was the only way he could get a contract with the City of Detroit.

Motion by Morgan, supported by Russell to refuse City Sand & Landfill the extended hours and not to permit them to dump sludge. Roll Call Vote: Yea: Morgan, Russell and Hoffman. Nay: Williams, Korotney and Demski. Motion failed.

Motion by Korotney, supported by Hoffman to table the extended hours until Mr. Soave can bring in more information on the type of sludge to be dumped. Yea: Williams, Hoffman, Korotney and Demski. Nay: Morgan and Russell. Motion carried.

Motion by Korotney, supported by Russell to adjourn. Meeting adjourned at 7:40 P.M.

Respectfully submitted,
Clarence J. Hoffman, Jr., Clerk

'Matinee' focuses in on young filmmakers' works

The finest films by Michigan's award-winning young filmmakers, 8 through 18 years, will be the focus of a matinee Saturday at Detroit Focus, 1010 Beaubien at Lafayette in Detroit.

From 2 to 5:30 p.m. the public is invited to view the live action narratives, science fiction and animated films produced entirely by young people.

A donation of $1 will be requested for admission. Locally produced award winners include "Running on Empty" from the Wayne-Woodhaven Film Camp and "Side One" by Doug Chaing, nationally recognized filmmaker from Westland and winner of both the 1978 and 1979 Michigan Student Film Festival Grand Prize awards.

From distant Rock, Mich., located in the Upper Peninsula, comes another top prize winner, "Kcor", part of a science fiction serial to be premiered. In addition, MSFF and Ann Arbor Film Festival winners will be shown along with other-previously unscreened films.

According to John Prusak, president of the Detroit Area Film Teachers: "These films represent the ideas of young people expressed through a media which requires the thinking skills of an artist combined with the understanding of today's electronic media.

"Students are looking at the world through the eye of a camera and recording their visions on film.

Some of the best film is being produced right here and this is a rare opportunity for us to share that with Detroiters."

And Prusak should know. He was Detroit's own 1979 Chicago International Film Festival Bronze Hugo recipient.

The Young Filmmakers Matinee is part of a 4-day festival of "Moving Images" by international award winners from Detroit and Michigan.

Editorial opinions

When kids play with guns and matches

Like matches and children, guns and kids also are a deadly combination.

Needless to say, few will argue that point. But it seems to us that that point must be driven home over and over again.

The recent tragedies in Van Buren and Sumpter townships are grim reminders of what can happen when these dangerous combinations accidentally meet.

In Van Buren, a nine-year-old boy was accidentally shot and killed by an older brother who told investigating officers that he was walking behind the victim when the shotgun accidentally went off.

In Sumpter, three young children reportedly playing with matches set a mobile home afire and subsequently died in the blaze.

Unfortunately, tragedies such as these are not unique. They have happened in the past, they are happening in the present and will happen in the future. Newspapers across the state and country are filled with the tragic events.

And the best fire chiefs and marshalls, the best editorial writers in the world can't prevent them. The reason is simple: words can't stop fires or children from playing with guns. Oh, sure, we can drive home a point — but points are useless when matches and weapons are kept in reach of kids.

There is one person, however, who can prevent these tragedies. Ironically, it is the person who is responsible for leaving the danger there that can erase the threat. That person is you.

"I have parents who bring me kids who they say play with matches," said Lt. Robert Turner, of the Wayne Fire Department, "and, of course, I warn the kids. But, I also tell the parents that they must share the blame, the responsibility because, after all, they were the ones who left the matches there in the first place."

"And the kids are only doing what their parents do. When they strike the match they are copying something that their parents have done," Lt. Turner stressed.

The theory that guns don't kill people — people kill people — is also a fascinating one.

Let's forget adults for a moment — we wonder just how many kids would be alive today if some adult didn't leave a gun lying around a closet for some inquisitive kid to inspect?

No one has come up with an answer. It's even sad to think about one.

Lawmakers

More about taxes

By THOMAS H. BROWN
State Representative
37th District

What new tax reform laws were passed in 1979?

House Bill 4013
(Public Act 114 of 1979)

Under the state constitution and state property tax law, all property is required to be uniformly assessed at 50 percent of its market value. House Bill 4013 changed the equalization process that is required if local assessing units do not carry out their responsibility to assess property fairly.

At the present time, if a unit's assessments are, on average, lower than 50 percent, one equalization factor may be applied to raise the average level to 50 percent. However, if there are inequities in the original assessments, equalization may only worsen any inequities.

For example, if two homes are respectively assessed at 30 percent and 50 percent (an average of 40 percent), the state equalized value of the first property would still only be 37.5 percent of its cash value while the assessment level on the second would be 62.5 percent.

In some parts of our state, the differences between the average assessment levels of different property classes (residential, commercial, agricultural, industrial, timber cut-over and developmental) were so far out of line that single-factor equalization made a mockery of the constitutional requirement for uniform property taxation.

House Bill 4013 allows, for the first time, the application of separate equalization factors on each property classification in 1981. The bill does nothing to change basic assessment practices or standards and should not necessarily translate into assessment increases to residential property owners.

In fact, in the areas in which residential property is presently assessed at a slightly higher rate than other classes of property, the enactment of House Bill 4013 may well lower the tax burden on residential property owners.

Townships, cities, villages, school districts and counties make the decisions each year that determine the burden of property taxation. These units of government spend every dollar of property tax revenue, not the state Legislature. House Bill 4013, which has been enacted as Public Act 114 of 1979, only alters the equalization system to provide better uniformity and a more equitable distribution of the burden.

House Bill 4232
(Public Act 35 of 1979)

Fifty-three percent of the voters in the 1978 November election supported Proposition E. But given the claims, counterclaims, and election-year politicking, the hard facts about what the language of the tax limitation amendment actually said were almost impossible to determine. It was equally as hard to determine what effect these constitutional changes would have on local governments and property taxation.

The Legislature's constructive role is to write new laws that are consistent with the language of the approved amendment. There is much public disillusionment with the Legislature's work on implementing tax limitation, but mostly because of some inaccurate expectations about the effect of the amendment, and misunderstanding during its promotion at election time.

House Bill 4232, enacted as Public Act 35 of 1979, provides the mechanism for local millage reductions when the overall growth of a taxing unit's property tax base grows faster than the cost of living.

One of the most controversial pieces of legislation before the House last year, the bill requires local governments to reduce their maximum authorized tax rates when the property tax base of a taxing unit, adjusted for new construction, grows faster than the cost of living.

The Other Side of the Meridian

Cops and politics

By TOM MOORADIAN
Acting Managing Editor

Hank Jason is a cop. A damned good cop, say his colleagues in Detroit who worked with and for him for nearly two decades.

And Jason may feel that the press has failed him. That may be true — but even the press, without sufficient proof, has its hands tied.

For more than 26 years Jason has fought crime. And, last month, he was asked to submit his resignation as police chief of the Inkster Police Department. Bluntly stated — Jason was fired.

"They took away my soldiers, then said I wasn't doing the job," Jason said as he poured a hot cup of tea in a corner of one of the local restaurants. "We had six officers leave the force and they, those politicians, refused to replace them."

"Ask anyone who heads a police department what happens when you lose men — good men — and can't replace them," Jason added. Jason, in an appointed position, knew his head was on the guillotine each day he turned up for work. He knew that he had to appease "the powers that are" in order to stay on. After seven years in Inkster, the ax came down.

Jason was replaced by acting Police Chief Anderson Young, who has a "Chappaquiddick" in his past. He was accused of sexual assault of a prisoner, but the courts tossed the case out.

Wylie Williams, one of three Inkster city managers in the past four years, said Jason had to go because "there was a severe morale problem which was a product of a number of things."

Ed Bivens, ex-Inkster mayor, pointed out that, "Hank Jason has, in my opinion, always managed the police department and its affairs in a very professional manner."

"Despite the fact that I was in disagreement with the city manager at the time to permit him to serve as a non-resident (Jason lives in Detroit), his appointment has been good for Inkster ... and when a man is employed to do a job, his employer has responsibility to provide him with the tools to do the job — and you can see there is an exodus of police officers."

HANK JASON

Jason came to Inkster from Detroit after serving more than 20 years on the police force. His last years in the big city were as police commander. Inkster at that time was in the midst of a fight against the expansion of porno shops and stores. Topless and bottomless dancing was spreading on the Michigan Avenue strip.

"We cleaned it up," Jason said. "And I'm not going to take the credit for it. But it was our police force — our men who did it. Until my arrival on the scene the city was in the midst of a plague that was about to engulf it — I helped put a stop to it."

During the recent elections in the city, voters turned down a proposed charter that would rid the city of a city-manager form of government and establish what is known as a strong-mayoral type. On the eve of the elections, there was an infamous "white paper" circulated and mailed to the electorate. One of the statements made was that high officials in the local government "have ties with criminals ... frequent known numbers drop..."

Did Chief Jason know of these rumors?

"There were rumors," Chief replied. "There are always rumors."

Did the Council or the city manager get rid of Jason because he was about to substantiate those rumors? Were they impeding an investigation? Is that the reason the ax fell...?

"I can't answer that ... but I'll get back with you," Jason said. For some reason, he never did.

About the draft

To the Editor:

Will You be Caught in the Draft? The answer to this, at least for me, is yes. Although soon it won't be just a question, but an order from Uncle Sam. Will you be willing to go fight for the freedoms you've grown up with? Again, for myself, the answer is yes. I believe it is every American's responsibility, if not duty, to register for the draft.

In the past year, magazines such as U.S. News and World Report, has been frequently publishing senators and various government officials and their views, pro and con. We've also been prepared with Russia's constant show of musclepower and other countries who think this great nation has lost its strength. If the U.S. does not stand up to these weak-kneed, big-mouth bullies, we will surely lose the outstanding respect we've gained in earlier years from our Allies.

With the shape of our all-volunteer army, it's no wonder President Carter has brought the question of the draft back. Only now, the truly gutless few who call themselves American, turn their back on their country.

If I may use the words of a former leader, the words which serve as a perfect slogan now, more than anytime since they were first used.

The statement goes like this, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but rather, what you can do for your country."

Indeed, Mr. Kennedy, indeed, R. Buchanan

Strange tests

To the Editor:

It surprises me that a question raised by Mrs. Harris at the February 19, Wayne Council Meeting, a question of RACIST and the heading of the Test Booklet asking the applicant for His or Her SEX, RACE, AGE, and National Origin. On a Civil Service Test Approved and thus giving by the City of Wayne The Multiple-Choice Question objected to by Barbara Harris says: Liberty is to Freedom as Bondage is to: Want, Slavery, Negro, Free, and Suffer.

The above questions clearly violate the 1964 Civil Rights Act. The act of discrimination has been ruled by courts to be prohibited by the Civil Rights Acts of 1866 and 1970 and the equal protection Clause of the 14th Amendments to the Constitution.

As amended, Title VII now covers: All state and local governments.

*New coverage added by 1972 Amendments.

Local governments should be familiar with requirements of these Acts. It's more than obvious since Wayne has been using this Test since 1940 it fails to recognize the Civil Rights Acts.

This clearly demonstrates what is commonly called: INSTITUTIONAL BARRIERS TO OPPORTUNITY. Perhaps the single most important occurrence in the evolution of equal employment law was the recognition by the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and by the Supreme Court of the United States that mandate of the Civil Rights Acts 1964 could not be fulfilled simply by prohibiting practices intentionally designed to deny opportunities to minorities. Accordingly in the landmark case of Griggs v. Duke Power Co. the Supreme Court applied TITLE VII of the 1964 act to invalidate general intelligence tests and other criteria for employment that disproportionately excluded minorities if they were not shown to be dictated by business necessity ... It was conceded that the Test used was not deliberately discriminatory, but the Supreme Court concluded that:

Court concluded that: GOOD INTENT ... does not redeem employment.

401 U.S. 424 (1971)

ID. at 432. In a subsequent decision, Albermarle Paper Co. v. Moody, 422 U.S. 405 (1975) the court made clear that even if tests are shown to be job related they may not be used if alternative devices are available that do not have a discriminatory effect and that also serves the employer's interest in efficient and trustworthy work force....

Farmlands

To the Editor:

I'm in support of preserving farmland, but Federal programs to help farmers, needless to say could be improved.

Canton's proposed program does not help the farmer to improve his production.

Before the Farmland Preservation issue was put on the 1978 ballot, Canton Twp. spent over $30,000 to determine that development rights would cost 16 million dollars or 4 mills. They also had a group on the streets explaining the proposal and sending informational pamphlets in the mail. But Farmland Preservation was defeated by the people.

If the Federal Government pays 50 percent of the development rights, (Federal money is taxpayers money) Canton residents still have to pay 8 million dollars or 2 mills, plus the inflation rate, until the program is started. But if the Federal Government doesn't pay 50 percent, then the Farmland Director talks of outside resources. But no one will invest 16 million dollars or 8 million dollars for good will.

Even as a Canton businessman, I'm not in need of a greater population, not now or in the future. Farmland Preservation for growth control, "IS A BAD WAY TO GO". We will, without question, short change the farmer, he will be used, abused and not helped. His needs are, good roads, good field drainage, clean ditches and low taxes. Canton Twp. has none of these Points of interest, a good portion of farm land is owned by developers, land speculators, land with purchase options. The farmers lease that land for farming.

The Farmland Director states "reduce your taxes substantially." I doubt that. My concerns are for the homeowner, I'm a home owner in Canton Twp. and our taxes can be controlled by the vote of the people. To keep a lid on taxes, was the reason for Headlee, voted in by the people.

My concerns are for the few farmers who own land in that area, because this has prevented and reduced their property potential. This seven year proposal has caused hardship to some people, it's become a moral issue.

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, January 29, our classrooms went on a train trip to Ann Arbor. Upon arrival at the station we found, to our dismay, that our buses had not yet arrived to pick us up.

Not being familiar with the Ann Arbor train station, we proceeded to go wait in what we thought was the station. In all our confusion it was a while before we realized that the station was The Gandy Dancer restaurant.

They could have asked us to leave, as we're sure 60 small children standing at the front door was not much of an attraction to the customers.

Not only did they let us stay and keep warm, but the staff displayed unexpected cordiality. Their tolerance was commendable!

Ask

Carol Premo

By CAROL PREMO, C.S.W.

Dear Carol,
I have a problem.
During the last three months I have felt very lonely and deserted. In October I broke up with a man I had gone with for several years. As a result I felt like I was in a void.
Well, anyway someone I work with seemed very nice and supportive during the first few weeks of my separation. The whole thing ended up in an affair.
I really do not have any problem with what I did and I do like this other person, but the problem is that the affair is over and I still have to work with this guy.

He is interested in other women and I can sort of tell he is quite the mover and I was part of his whatever. I do feel stupid and I am having a very difficult time working with him.

Sometimes, I think I should quit and other times I think it will work out ok. But I cannot get rid of the feeling that I have been had, and I feel guilty and embarrassed about my actions.

I know I have a problem, but I am not sure about what questions I need to ask. Should I quit? How do I stop feeling dumb and stupid and guilty?

Confused

Dear Confused,

I agree that you are confused in that you seem to go back and forth over how you feel about this situation. You tell me that you feel all right about the situation and still like him and then you tell me that you feel guilty and upset by him.

Maybe it would help to evaluate what you were initially looking for in this relationship. Did you have a hidden agenda with this man? Were you trying to have him take the place of the man you had just broken up with three months earlier? If these two questions would be answered in the affirmative, perhaps we have a case of mutual use and feelings of frustration and rejection.

Should I quit? What will running and hiding provide except more reason to run and hide? The one you really have to face is you. To understand you and know and accept and live up to your own values.

You must learn to enjoy your own company and like yourself. If you feel that you cheated yourself in this situation, face it, admit it and then put it behind you and go on to the next.

On the brighter side

Olympic triumph

By JIM BRADLEY

I don't know about you, but I got "high" last week.

It was patriotic euphoria, an inspirational thrill of pride in America and a sense of what our country stands for. It was brought about by watching the Winter Olympics on television every night last week.

And although many words have already been written about the Winter Olympics and what it meant to Americans, let me add a few personal comments. They make no claim to originality — just straight from the heart of a loyal American who has taken new hope in seeing his fellow Americans respond patriotically.

Patriotism is a feeling, it is contagious, it is something that must be shared to be effective. It must have a catalyst, a rallying point that molds millions of people into one driving force of national unity.

The Winter Olympics did that for America.

Perhaps the most powerful catalyst was the United States Hockey team, that youthful, courageous band of musketeers that outdueled their much more experienced foes on the frozen field of battle to win the gold medal. Perhaps it was Eric Heiden, the smooth-striding thoroughbred on skates from Madison, Wisconsin who captured five gold medals by flashing over ice on powerful legs with fluid grace.

Perhaps it also included the United States athletes who didn't win first place medallions, such as Linda Fratianne, second in figure skating; Phil Mahre, runnerup in men's slalom and Leah Mueller, second in women's 500-meter speed skating; or Beth Heiden, a silver medal winner in women's 3,000 meter speed skating, and Charles Tickner, a third-place finisher in men's figure skating competition.

All I know, it gave me a great thrill and sense of pride in seeing our American athletes "go for the gold." But, in all honesty, it gave me great pride to see athletes from all over the world represent their country with dignity and dedication — and even tears.

In the final analysis, it was the United States Hockey Team that really got the flag-waving enthusiasm going in this country. Eric was expected to do well — and perhaps he is the finest athlete in the Winter Olympics — period! And the other Americans performed admirably and with dedication.

But who did the American people relate to? Who did they rally behind? It was the 20 youthful hockey players that showed the indomitable spirit which has made America great. Mothers and grandmothers, who hardly knew what a hockey stick was before last week, were cheering madly in the countdown victories over Russia and Finland for the gold medal.

"My mother knows practically nothing at all about hockey, yet she was yelling just as loud as anyone else for the United States hockey team," a co-worker said Monday afternoon, the day after the entire country got "high" on patriotism.

Friday night probably was the highlight of the entire week. I went to cover a high school basketball game — Garden City East at Westland John Glenn — and had "second thoughts" when I heard the USA-Russia hockey game would be on television. However, my two good friends were coaching — Dan Henry for Glenn and Mike Riley for East — and my love for high school sports is great.

As I entered the high school, the man at the ticket desk said, "Would you like to know the USA beat Russia?" I didn't know if he was asking me or telling me and my blank face must have reflected that fact. "Well, they did," he continued, "4-3." Wow, that's great I thought as I entered the noisy gym.

At halftime, the public address announcer gave the hockey score and the gym exploded with another roar. I hurried home, arriving about 10:20 p.m., thinking I had missed the hockey highlights. The game started at 5 p.m. and was over already, but I thought I had probably missed the taped highlights. My wife was watching TV and the third period was just underway with Russia leading.

"Russia's ahead 3-2," she said. ABC announcer Jim McKay had taken great pains to keep the final score a secret. "Would you like to know who won?" I asked.

"No, don't tell me," she replied. "let me see for myself." Just as I walked into the kitchen to fix a snack, Bill Bonds came on with a "newsbrief" and said something like, "stay tuned for details of the United States victory on our 11 o'clock news."

My wife was disappointed at learning ahead of time that the USA won (someone likened it to being told how a good movie turns out, long before it's over). But even knowing how the game turned out did not dampen the ecstatic feeling of victory over the Russians. It was great to see the veteran Russian hockey players — playing together 12 years and holders of four successive gold medals — be whipped by a bunch of fuzzy-cheeked American college kids playing together for the first time.

Americans broke out spontaneously in singing "God Bless America" in bars, in homes, on the streets of downtown Lake Placid — just about everywhere. A new surge of patriotism and love of country seems to flood the collective souls of all Americans everywhere. From the youngest children to the oldest grandmothers and grandfathers, the USA hockey team has forged a unifying bond among all ages.

The padded, red-white-and-blue-clad warriors on ice embodied and symbolized a much-needed victory. It "sent a message" to the Kremlin, I believe. And that message is: that the United States may have gotten soft and lazy in the past, but it can pull itself together to conquer any foe — no matter how strong or formidable — when it has to.

The Russian hockey team, a 10-3 winner over this same United States team two weeks ago, was favored to skate away easily with the gold medal. A "never-say-die" band of Minutemen fought a revolution on ice and brought the favored Reds to their knees. Sunday's come-from-behind 4-2 victory over the Finns was frosting on the cake.

And as President Carter was entertaining all the U.S. Olympic athletes at the White House Monday — I was hoping one thing. I hope our President gets the message of courage displayed by the USA hockey team.

That's the only way we'll see the American Hostages in Iran set free from behind chained iron gates to walk again on proud American soil.

Reflections

Oh, those grandchildren

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

I have friends who spend a great deal of time dragging out pictures of their grandchildren and talking for hours about the pleasure of grandparenthood. They seem to find a great deal of satisfaction out of it, and the way they beam one would think they never have qualms about all the connotations that being a grandparent holds.

They never seem to realize that each birthday a grandchild has pushes them one year closer to the tottering stage.

Maybe they don't realize this because their grandchildren are different from mine.

Maybe they don't have a grandchild like my Mike, who sitting beside me as we zoom (youthfully, I might say) down the expressway asks "how come old people have black spots on their hands?" Or "how come old people have wrinkles?"

Not feeling like an old person, despite the wrinkles and the spots on my hands, I try to answer the kid as truthfully as I can.

"It's because the old person's hands have done a heap of workin' and the dark spots are like a badge of honor," I tell him. "And the wrinkles come because of having lived a long time and done a heap of worryin'."

I was thinking of all the old people I know.

"Gee, you sure got a lot of honor badges," the little kid says. "And a lot of wrinkles, too."

I almost run off the expressway and I have a lot of truck drivers making circles in the air as I swerve while trying to adjust the rear view mirror in an attempt to see just what wrinkles that kid could be talking about.

"Do I seem old to you, Mike?" I ask. "Yep."

"I don't FEEL old," I tell him. He scoots across the seat toward me and pokes me in the side with his finger.

"You FEEL fat," he says.

Of course there are compensations. The other day my only granddaughter was sitting in her school lunchroom where I plowed through tables and tables of little kids reeking of bologna and peanut butter, to deliver a message to her. All the little faces were upturned and staring at me, so as I left I waved and smiled at them. Halfway down the hall I heard running footsteps, and I turned to see Darcy catching up to me.

"Grandma," she whispered. "My friends all say you are pretty."

God bless those little kids for being so astute in their appraisal of beauty. I rode my cloud of happiness all the way to the college where I picked up my young daughter.

"She's beautiful," I thought as I watched her run gracefully down the stairs; watched the glow of her eyes and cheeks, the wide smile glistening in the joy of being young. She popped into the car and we zoomed (youthfully again, I might say) down the highway towards home. A car full of young men tooted and pulled alongside us. They grinned and waved at her and made other appreciative sounds; fell behind and pulled around to drive alongside of me.

I turned and grinned.

"Geez," one yelped. "Let's get out of here. She's with her grandmother!"

White House:

image created for one candidate by his savvy campaign advisers.

Martin Van Buren, who managed Old Hickory's campaign and shaped his pitch to the common man, had himself been elected to the White House in 1836. But in the tough, dramatic contest of 1840, Van Buren, the son of a truck farmer and tavern keeper, failed to make use of his own humble background.

In the meantime, a Baltimore newspaper suggested that Van Buren's opponent—Gen. William Henry Harrison—be given a "barrel of hard cider and a pension of 2 thousand a year...and...he will sit the remainder of his days in a log cabin..." Harrison actually was a member of one of Virginia's affluent, first families, but his supporters saw opportunity in the journalistic sneer, quickly turning the college-educated landowner into the "log-cabin, hard-cider candidate."

The 1860 campaign, described by the book's authors as "perhaps the most serious election in American history," offered Americans four candidates. The central contest was between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas, who differed principally on whether slavery should be barred from U.S. territories by popular sovereignty or by Congress.

Like the campaign of 1860, the contest between William McKinley, the Republican representing business and industrial interests, and William Jennings Bryan, the Democrat allied with farm areas, came at a time of national crisis, this time economic. Bryan demanded social and fiscal reforms to counter the excesses of the Gilded Age.

Although Bryan lost the election, his campaign, one of the hardest ever fought in this country, laid the groundwork for the progressive changes to come in the early 1900s and later during Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal. The campaign itself was innovative; Bryan traveled more than 18,000 miles by train to reach the voters. The whistle stop continued as the principal vehicle of campaigning until just 20 years ago, when the airplane (Kennedy's "The Caroline") took over the role.

Tragedy mars regional championship

Prep wrestler's father dies of apparent heart attack

With tragedy hovering over them, Plymouth Salem wrestlers managed to pick up three gold medals and qualify seven members of their team for this week's Class A state championships.

During the regional meet staged at Westland John Glenn, the father of a member of the Salem team suffered an apparent heart attack and was pronounced dead at the hospital. (Read The Sports Meridian.)

"It was a very difficult and sad time for all of us," said Plymouth Salem Coach Ron Krueger, commenting on the death of Mr. Snider, whose son, Stan, is a member of the Salem team. "It was a shock that we all felt."

Salem, undefeated in the regular season and winner of several invitational tournaments, finished second to regional and defending Class A state champ, Temperance Bedford, at Saturday's regional tournament at John Glenn. Bedford garnered 128 points, nine more than Salem which wound up ahead of 25 other teams.

Belleville and Romulus were seventh and eighth, while Wayne Memorial and Westland John Glenn were 15th and 16th, respectively.

Salem received outstanding performances from heavyweight Greg Gattoni, Jim Schultz (105) and Jeff Powers (185) who were gold medalists. Gattoni defeated Romulus' superb wrestler, Hiram Golden in a close match, 7-6, for his first regional gold, while Schultz took on and turned back Farmington's Dave Denny, 9-4 to win the crown.

Powers fought off Farmington's Greg Lemanski in another close one, 13-9, for his first place.

Salem also qualified for state Jerry Valchine, who lost his bid for a gold when he finished on the short-end of a 10-7 decision to Bedford's 133-pounder, Jeff Striggow.

Mark Ross, 126-pounder who was third, and Jeff Brown, a 112-pounder who won in the consolation finals, along with 119-pounder, Jeff Dunson, a fourth place finisher, also will represent the Suburban 8 Conference champs at the finals.

The second place team finish was the best finish by any Salem team in regional competition. Could they go all the way?

"I think we have a shot at it," said Coach Krueger, "however, there are some fine teams we're going to have to consider, namely, Hazel Park and Davidson, and no one ever counts Temperance Bedford out of it." Bedford will take eight of its wrestlers to state.

Belleville's state hopes lie on the shoulders of veteran grapplers Rick Winekoff and Steve Cook who were runners-up at the regionals, along with John Enzenauer. Winekoff came within one victory of the gold. He dropped a narrow 5-3 decision to league rival, Steve Pierce of Trenton.

Drama of life and death

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

It was warm and sticky Saturday inside Westland John Glenn's gym, where more than twenty-seven high school wrestling teams were competing for Class A medals and the right to be represented at the state finals.

Each and every participant was there to fulfill some sort of fantasy. Some dream. It took many of them years to prepare to make their entrance on center stage.

And, while the combatants eyed one another as if each held a sharp rapier, ready to strike, another drama — a tragedy — was being enacted in the stands.

That drama would eventually engulf Stan Snider, Plymouth Salem's outstanding 198-pound senior who was competing for a regional medal.

Unbeknownst to Stan a fan had suddenly collapsed, his face turning to stony white. Despite anxious attempts to help, to revive the stricken victim, the man died, a victim of an apparent heart-attack.

The victim was Stan's father, who had not missed a meet his son wrestled in.

"It is something that no one can anticipate," said Plymouth Salem Coach Ron Krueger. "No one can predict these things. They tried everything to save Mr. Snider's life ... it just wasn't possible."

"You hear about incidents like this occurring elsewhere, but you never believe it can strike so close to home, to someone of your very own. It is a tragedy we will remember in these parts for a long time."

"And members of our team, myself and staff, all of us send our deepest sympathy and condolences to the Snider family," Coach Krueger added.

Ironically, Stan's grandfather was also in the crowd at the time and rushed to his son's assistance. He stumbled and fell, sustaining bodily injuries. However, he is reported in good condition at the hospital.

It makes one wonder ... doesn't it?
I don't think I'll ever understand life. Or death.

Golfers are heading South

In the meantime, Dennis Davidson, the man who heads the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department, wants you to polish up your golf clubs and fly with him to the sunny South.

"We still have openings for our golf trip to Orlando," said the man who is revolutionizing the rec. department with his energetic approach. "We have made some unique arrangements with Holiday Inn in Orlando so that participants can enjoy a four-day golfing holiday."

And you don't have to be a Romulus resident to participate, Davidson stressed. The group will depart from Romulus International Airport, (that's Metro Airport) on Thursday, March 27 and will return to Michigan on Sunday, March 30.

While in Orlando the golfers will be staying at the Holiday Inn and such extras as rental cars and electric golf cars are included in the price of $299 (Romulus residents) and $309 (for non-residents). Oh, yes, you'll be able to get in 54 holes of golf.

If you're interested, you have until March 7 to sign up.

Davidson also waved good-by to a group of Romulus senior citizens who took off for the sunny South on Monday. That group left by bus for Orlando and will take in Disney World, the Kennedy Space Center and other sites.

Wonder if the boss would give me a week or two off? I can dream, can't I?

Romulus South LL sets baseball registration

It's time to sign up for baseball in the Romulus South Little League. Registration will be accepted from noon to 6 p.m., March 8 at the Romulus City Hall and all youngsters who anticipate playing in the league are urged to sign up. Registration fee is $15 per player, but no more than 20 per family. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Dan Doss at 942-0347.

Freestyle relay saves day for Wayne tankers

It went right down to the wire between Wayne Memorial, the undefeated, defending champ and Monroe, and Coach Jim McPartlin's Zebras pulled out a thrilling 87-85 victory over their challenger.

The victory enabled Wayne to remain in control of the Great Lakes 8 Conference swim title race. They are 6-0 on the season, but will face another severe test Thursday night when Wyandotte invades the Zebra pool.

Wayne takes an untarnished 6-0 league and a 9-1 over-all record into the 7:30 p.m. meet against the Bruins who have the dubious honor of being the Zebras' guest for "Seniors' Night."

Commenting on the Monroe meet, Coach McPartlin said, "that it was the best team effort we have had so far this season. We need something like it to beat Wyandotte. Wyandotte and Monroe will be tough."

Trailing 81-77 going into the final event, the 400-yard freestyle relay, Wayne needed a first and third place to top the Trojans and the defending champs posted a victory thanks to Korky Whitehead, Allen Jones, Mike Soules and Steve Matheny. The winning time was 3:34.0.

The win was only one of three by the Zebras. Scott Martin's victory in the 100-yard butterfly, and Mike Soules' triumph in the 50-yard freestyle were the other two winning performances. Wayne had to rely on its depth to put down the excellent Monroe contingent.

No stopping 'Topper'

Burly John Topalian (54) of Garden City East drives past Glenn's Ken Liedel to score two of his game-high 15 points in the Panther's 45-43 victory. The usually-deadeye Liedel had a disappointing night, scoring only two baskets and fouling out early in the Rocket defeat. East and Glenn are among six local teams in the state district basketball playoffs starting at Plymouth Salem High School next Monday night.

Belleville awaits Edsel Ford

Tigers seek to avenge double overtime loss in league finale

It's been a long year for Belleville cage coach Tom Niemi. And it's been a learning one. "We have our problems," said Niemi, after his Tigers dropped a 63-52 Suburban 8 Conference game to Trenton last week. "And when you have a down year there's bound to be a lot of criticism. Dissatisfaction. But, let me say this, all of us around here learned a lot. "And we're looking forward to what's ahead," the Tiger mentor added. Belleville winds down the regular season hosting Edsel Ford Friday night. Edsel needed two overtimes to beat the local cagers in Dearborn the first time around. Last night Belleville took on Plymouth Canton which happens to be the hottest team in Western Wayne County.

With senior guard Charlie Blackmon out of the Tiger lineup because of disciplinary problems, Belleville jumped on Trenton early. They built up a 11-2 lead as Scott Straight, Jeff Patterson and Mike Sampson found the mark. But for some inexplicable reason the Tigers lost their intensity.

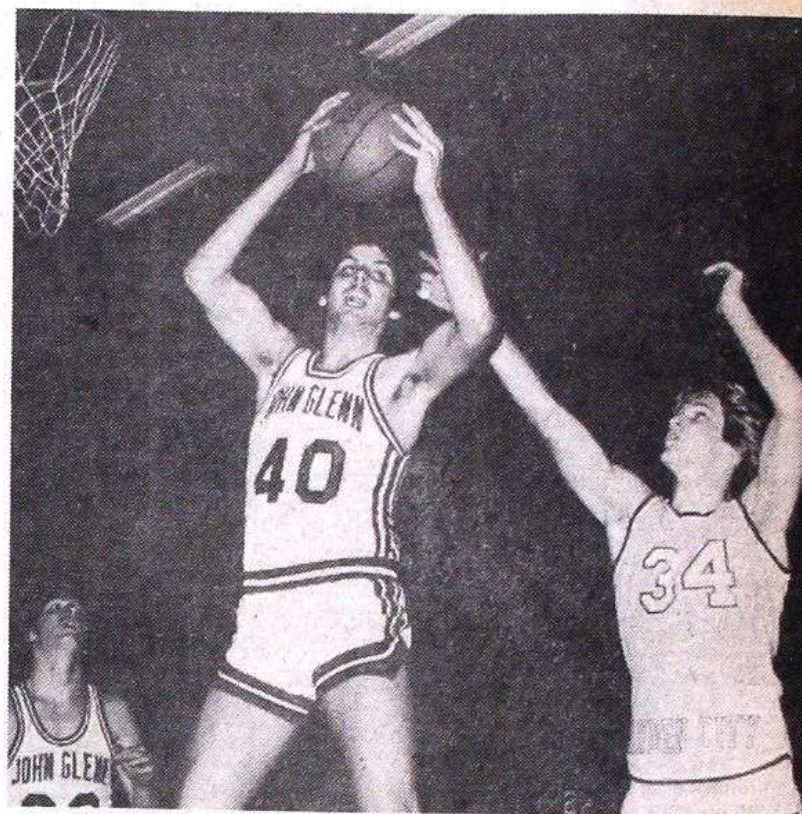

Ahead 16-9 after one period, the Tigers let Trenton come back and outscored them 16-6 to take command of a 25-22 halftime lead.

Trenton shot down the Tigers 15-13 and 23-17 in the last two periods.

"After that first period we didn't play ball," Niemi said. "We were listless, but so was Trenton. It was a weird kind of game, a game that appeared as if neither side wanted to win."

Patterson was the lone Belleville player to reach double figures. He had 12 points, while Trenton countered with 19 points each from 6-5 forward Kevin Kolchhoff and 6-1 guard Steve Bucko.

Belleville shot a dismal 19 of 55 from the field for 35 percent, but made 14 of 22 at the free throw line. Trenton, in comparison sank 24 of 59 from the field and connected on 15 of 19 from the line.

Two 'senior' citizens

Coach Dan Henry started an all-senior line-up Friday in honor of Parents' Night, and Jim Carlson (40), snaring this rebound, and Scott Thornton (22) helped the Rockets build a 14-13 first period lead over Garden City East. However, Shawn McGrath (34), who collared 16 rebounds, had the last word when he dropped in the winning basket with 45 seconds left as the Panthers prevailed, 45-43. It was Coach Mike Riley's second impressive win for East in nine days as the improving Panthers eye the state playoffs in the Plymouth Salem District beginning next Monday.

Will Ypsi cagers continue jinx over Romulus in playoffs?

If Coach Rod Hanna doesn't find a way of shaking up his Romulus Eagles each time they play Ypsilanti High, he and his cagers can forget about a Class A District basketball championship this year. Ypsi continued its domination over Romulus cagers with a come-from-behind 86-70 victory last week. Romulus has the misfortunes again this year of playing in a district tournament that Ypsilanti will host.

"We've never beaten them," Coach Hanna said alluding to Ypsi. "I don't know what it is. It seems we'll play three periods of excellent ball then collapse in one — and that's it."

It was the third period that Romulus' fate was decided in its latest meeting with the Braves. Ahead 22-18 after the first period and garnering a 38-25 lead at halftime, Romulus fell to pieces immediately after the intermission. Ypsi made their first four shots, then went on to outscore their hosts 29-10 in that eight-minute span.

"We just stopped playing ball ... our people were not moving," Hanna said. "We fell apart."

Fred Coefield, a 6-4 guard, fired up the Braves as he came out in the third period and pumped in 10 of his 24 points.

Darryl Lewis, who has been averaging in double figures for the past eight games, tallied 24 points for the Eagles. Lewis had eight of those in the first period. Center Dave Casey sacked 10 of his 18 points in the opening period and also helped out with 13 rebounds, while Stacey Shreve, Dave Holfield and Bobby Stewart each chipped in with 10 points.

Romulus earned its 11th victory in 17 starts at the expense of Oak Park Friday night, 73-72. The Eagles nearly blew an 11 point third period lead. They made a rash of turnovers in the closing minutes of the game which allowed Oak Park to narrow the gap and come within a basket of winning.

Out front 19-17 after the first period, Romulus fell behind 35-34 at halftime, but Lewis tossed in 10 of his game high 24 and Stewart sank eight of his 16 in the third period as the Eagles outscored their rivals 24-12 to build up a 58-47 edge heading into the finale.

"We missed a couple of easy shots, and committed some turnovers in that last period and allowed them to catch up," said Hanna. "We played sloppy in spots and we committed six traveling violations and that just wasn't like us."

Hanna said there was a Parents' Night crowd on hand and that could have contributed to the team's nervousness.

Lewis again paced his team's scoring attack with 24 points. Casey's contributions included 19 points, 10 rebounds, four blocked shots while playing against Oak Park's 6-7 center, Pete Thomas. Thomas got 18 points.

Stewart, fighting off the flu, added 16 points.

Wayne Ford Civic League seeks baseball players

With the baseball season right around the corner, the Wayne Ford Civic League has scheduled a March 2 baseball registration for those who wish to play in its leagues this summer.

Registration will be accepted between noon and 2 p.m. at the Wayne Ford Civic Center offices, 1661 N. Wayne Road.

"We're looking for girls between the ages of 8 and 15, for our softball program," pointed out Joe Cooley, athletic director. "Also this is the first call for Pee Wee Reese (11-12), Sandy Koufax (13-14), and Mickey Mantle (15-16) traveling All-Star teams."

"Many of our players still are unaware of the registration," stressed Cooley.

Fee is $10 per player or $25 per families who will have two or more players in the league.

Grand Blanc tankers snap Tiger streak at 13

Belleville High's 13-meet winning streak came to an abrupt end last week as a fast-swimming Grand Blanc contingent emerged with an upset 97-75 victory over the Suburban 8 Conference pacesetters.

The meet was an out-of-league confrontation and drew the following response from the veteran Belleville mentor:

"I'm really not disappointed in this loss," Vichy said. "Sure, we would have liked to win and keep our victory streak intact, however, I feel it did us more good than anything else."

Belleville has the week off before competing in the league championships scheduled for Thursday and Friday, March 6 and 7 at Schoolcraft College.

"This will give us an opportunity to practice and get ourselves ready for the meet," Vichy pointed out.

Belleville managed to stash away four of the 11 events against Grand Blanc. Chris Renton, considered one of the top 200 medley and butterflyers in the state, accounted for two of those victories. He was clocked in 2:04.5 in winning the individual medley and 55.4 for his triumph in the butterfly.

Diver Pat McClelland had an excellent day on the boards where he compiled the winning total of 271.95 points.

Belleville also won the 50-yard freestyle in 22.4.

Division titles are at stake in over 30 hockey league

They'll be skating for divisional championship next week in the Over 30 Wayne-Westland Hockey League.

The championships will be decided on the last night of the regular season and over in the Bonkowski Division it appears that Futurama, the league leader, will have to settle its title dispute with Johnson Carbonic which pits the best offense against the best defense.

Futurama's lineup includes goalie Tim Vanderburgh who has nurtured six shutouts during the campaign and has given up 35 goals in 20 games.

On the other side of the ledger, Johnson Carbonic has ripped the nets for 106 goals. And no other teams can boast the explosive attack of this team.

Johnson's gained a first place tie by edging The Jock Shop 4-3 on the strength of three third period goals. Jerry Robertson scored the tie-breaker with less than one minute remaining in the duel.

Robertson finished the battle with three goals, while Mike Dziurot collected the other. Jerry Grube responded with a hat trick for the losers.

Jim Gibson's first whitewash of the season highlighted Extra Point's 3-0 triumph over Futurama Eng. Two first period goals by Barry Anderson were enough for the victory. Mark LeFond added the single goal.

Tastee Freez, in the meantime, clinged to first place over in the Berrington Division as it edged a determined Jack's Sports Center, 5-4. Five separate players got on the scoreboard as Dick Burns, Mo Paquette, Terry Carley, Rod Dittmar and Joel Dickerson all got solo goals.

Scoring for Jack's were Mike Adamson, who tallied twice. Ray Erickson and Murray Peterson collected one apiece. A Tastee Freez victory will give them the division championship. However, if Tastee Freez should falter and Extra Point posts a victory, the championship trophy will be awarded to Extra Point.

In other action, Brock's Homes scored three goals in three minutes early in the third period to break up a close game and clinch a 6-3 victory over Jake's Lounge.

Layne Cardinal, Dallas Hayley, Bud Brock, George Motts and Dave Zajac and Jim Drewery scored for the victors. On the score sheet for the vanquished were Tony Spada, Paul Briski and Mike Villeneuve.

The March 2 playoffs will pit Jake's Lounge and Extra Point or Tastee Freez in a 9 p.m. game at the Wayne Rink, while Jack's Sports will play the nightcap at 10:30 against either Extra Point or Tastee Freez.

Over the Bonkowski Division, the Jock Shop has an 8 p.m. engagement with Futurama or Johnson's and at 10 p.m., Brock's is scheduled to meet either Futurama or Johnson's.

Crash landing

Skidding a bit too late to scoop up the ball, Cherry Hill's William Ellis (52) finds himself on the floor as a quick-footed Willow Run Flyer recovers a loose ball. The collision between the two non-conference rivals produced an easy 95-48 victory for the Flyers, one of the top Class B teams in the state this year. Cherry Hill went on Friday to a 65-46 victory over Taylor Kennedy Friday Night. Photo by Reggie Bradley.

Zebras finish 3rd in Great Lakes

Wayne finds winning touch-turns back Wyandotte, 57-51

Wayne Memorial has found the magic of winning basketball games again.

"And we're doing it because of our unselfish play," said Coach Steve Schwartz whose Zebras wrapped up the Great Lakes 8 Conference season Friday night with a dazzling 57-51 victory over Wyandotte.

The victory happened to be Wayne's eighth in its last nine starts and 10th win in 14 in the league. Their record enabled them to finish third in the league standings behind Fordson and Monroe who have one game left and are deadlocked at the top with 11-2 records.

"If you look at our scoring chart you'd see that the shooting is spread around," Schwartz pointed out. "No one is taking more than nine or 10 shots. Our scoring is balanced. We also are receiving excellent results from the bench.

"I feel that these are the reasons behind this team's success," he said. Before traveling to Plymouth Salem for the Class A District Championships, Wayne had a rematch Tuesday night with Westland John Glenn. Glenn snapped a four-game Wayne winning streak earlier in the season, at the Western Wayne Christmas Holiday.

Wayne would like to even up the score.

The Zebras wasted little time at Wyandotte, a team that has been torn in Wayne's sides. While the Zebras' man-to-man defense held the Bruins to five points, Schwartz' troops built up a 10-5 lead for one period then went on to outscore their rivals 18-14 behind Andy Daily and Darryl Jordan's six points, taking a 28-19 edge into the lockerroom.

However, Wyandotte came out and cut the lead to four points early in the third period. Wayne's took the wind of the sails when Paul Fluegel trapped in an errant layup, lifting the Zebras' to a six-point lead for the rest of the period.

Fiddling with a 16-point advantage, with six minutes to go Wayne suddenly hit a "confusion spell" that helped the exhausted Bruins capitalize on nine turnovers and make the game look closer than it actually was. When Greg Reynolds sank both ends of a one-and-one to give the Zebras a six-point edge, the Bruins never got under that margin.

Reynolds turned in a superb defensive job on Mike Brennan, who finished with four points for the game. Brennan had been averaging in high double figures for the season.

Daily accounted for 14 points, the game's high, while Jordan added 10, the only other Wayne player in double figures. Ricky Rogers led the Zebras on the boards, grabbing nine rebounds.

Wayne made 25 of 52 shots from the field and 7 of 10 free throws as compared to Wyandotte's 20 of 59 output from the floor and 11 of 17 at the foul line. Wayne outrebounded the Bruins 30-24 for the evening.

North dunks Glenn tankers

Chances for a Westland John Glenn title year in the Northwest Suburban Conference swim circuit dimmed last week as Coach Jim Lawrence's Rockets dropped a lopsided 105-66 to pre-season title favorite, North Farmington.

"North is just loaded this year," moaned Coach Lawrence whose swimmers are 2-2 on the league year and await neighboring Livonia Franklin for their next league test on Thursday.

"We were not mentally ready to swim against them," Coach Lawrence continued. "And, with North swimming some of its best times of the year, that didn't help us either."

The Westlanders garnered three first places with sophomore Greg Dawkins covering the 100-yard butterfly in the winning time of 1:06.0. Glenn diver Rob Freeborn piled up 225.75 points while Curt Osterhout, Doug White, Rob Emerson and Dawkins combined their efforts to capture the 400-yard freestyle relay in 3:36.0.

Up-and-down Glenn cagers are downed by GC East

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

The Rockets sputtered and the Panthers stumbled, but Garden City East managed a 45-43 victory over John Glenn in a loosely-called battle between Northwest Suburban League also-rans Friday night.

Many obvious fouls went unwhistled during the contest and the most important one — from Rocket Coach Dan Henry's viewpoint, at least — came when forward Dave Cesarz was fouled on the last play of the exciting game. With the Panthers of Mike Riley clinging tenuously to their 45-43 lead, Cesarz went up to shoot with four seconds left on the clock.

He was bumped by an East player as he took the shot, knocked off balance and the shot went harmlessly into the air. The partisan "Parents' Night" Glenn crowd roared with disapproval when the infraction went uncalled by the officials as time ran out.

"I can't believe those officials didn't call that obvious foul in the last few seconds," said a livid Coach Henry after the game. "One of those officials out there tonight didn't have the guts to call fouls — and it's not fair to our kids who play so hard," said the usually self-composed coach.

But Glenn didn't lose this game on that call and Henry would be the first to agree. The first-year head coach started an all-senior team in honor of parents' night and they played most of the first period as Glenn led, 14-13.

However, the Rockets went stone-cold in the second stanza, being outscored 15-5 and trailed at half-time, 28-19. Both teams scored eight points each in the third period to etch a 36-27 East lead on the scoreboard. But even a 16-9 Glenn margin in the final period fell short. Glenn is now 8-10 overall and 3-6 in league play.

Leading Coach Riley's 4-14 Panthers (3-6 in the league) were John Topalian with 15 points and Roger Ferguson with 10. Den Smith was the only Rocket in twin digits with 14 points on seven left-handed field goals, all about 15 footers.

"Our kids played a real, real good game, but I was disappointed with the last two minutes of the game," said Coach Mike Riley, whose Panthers defeated league-leading Livonia Franklin last week and have won two of their last three. Riley noted that his point guard, Jack Lezotte, was fouled often, but they also weren't called.

East was out-rebounded by Glenn, 38-37, missed the five 1-and-1 free throw situations in the last period and made numerous turnovers in the fading seconds, but managed to win. Shawn McGrath, who pulled down 16 rebounds for East, got loose under the basket to score with 45 seconds left to give the Panthers a 45-39 lead.

Glenn didn't give up, though, causing turnovers that allowed Den Smith and Dave Cesarz to score to make it 45-43. The Rockets' pressing full-court pressure caused one more turnover with 15 seconds left. But Cesarz's final missed shot — and the obvious foul that wasn't called — ended the Glenn comeback.

"And, thirdly, not the least of which is that we wrestled poorly as a team. I feel we should have had three or four state qualifiers rather than barely qualifying two," Wood pointed out.

Wayne

Wayne's Parks and Recreation Department is offering an Over 25 Women's Softball League this season. Games will be played at Avondale or Forest Parks. Members of teams must be Wayne residents, and the goal of the league is "to have fun and leisure recreation" during the summer months, according to a recreation spokesperson.

An organizational meeting will be held in late March or early April.

If you wish to play on a team or have a team ready to compete, please contact the rec. offices at 721-7400.

'Thursdays are Terrific'

Musical groups and other entertainers are needed for the Wayne "Thursdays are Terrific" program for the upcoming summer.

The programs were a joint venture between the Chamber of Commerce and the Parks and Recreation Department. The programs will run during the summer on Thursday beginning from mid-June through mid-August 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Last year's program was highlighted by organ concerts by Yamaha Keyboard World, dance recitals by Vivians School of Dance and a preview of the Wayne Community Theatres presentation of Carnival.

Romulus

There's still room for those who wish to travel with the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department golf trip to Orlando, Fla. The group will leave from Metro Airport on March 27 and will return on Sunday, March 30.

Cost for the trip is $299 for residents and $309 for non-residents. Deadline to sign up is March 7.

Romulus summer softball program is in the process of completion. There are still openings however for teams in the women's league. If you're interested in playing softball this summer, please contact the recreation offices at 941-0666, extension 254.

There will be a meeting of men's softball team managers at 7:30 p.m., March 3 at the Recreation Office, 36515 Bikkins.

Fishing tourney

A couple of big fish that got away has earned local anglers awards.

Julian Unger, of 36253 Michigan Ave., Wayne, earned a Gamefish Release Award in the Metropolitan South Florida Fishing Tournament when he caught then released four bonefish.

Unger fished out of Islamorada, in the Florida Keys, with Capt. Jimmy Albright on the Terry.

Westlander Richard Rossler, of 7494 August Avenue, also picked up a Gamefish Release Award when he also nabbed and released three snook.

Rossler also fished out of Islamorada but with Capt. Ron Wagner on the Producer.

Of spouse abuse

Community institutions let down victims

Victims of spouse abuse are being let down by the courts, police, social agencies, medical facilities and other community institutions which are expected to help or protect such victims, according to the findings of a comprehensive study released today by United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit (UCS).

The law enforcement and justice systems, as well as human service agencies have minimized and neglected this problem, the study concluded; and they must give priority attention to spouse abuse and other kinds of family violence.

The study was initiated by UCS a year ago in response to community requests; and it was funded through a grant from the Hudson-Webber Foundation.

Chairman of the study, Dr. Mary C. Sengstock, Wayne State University professor of sociology, said the problem of spouse abuse is serious.

"Citizens who worked on the study project are convinced that a great deal needs to be done in developing more and better services," she said, "particularly for the victims and for the children who often are permanently affected by the trauma of family violence."

The UCS study disclosed that the problem of spouse abuse is compounded by community attitudes.

Dr. Sengstock said: "The feeling that the victim is to blame for the abuse is widespread. One expression of blame is 'she deserves what she got' or 'she asked for it' or 'she must like it that way or she wouldn't stay in the situation.'"

The UCS study also found that: —There are at least two million victims of spouse abuse each year in the United States which, according to some experts, involve one in every two couples, and one incidence of wife battering every three minutes. In the metropolitan Detroit area, police data show around 20,000 cases of spouse abuse annually.

—Nearly 85 percent of all abused spouses are women who often are described as lacking in self esteem, dependent, and having a strong sense of guilt. They often come from families where abuse existed. They have been abused or have witnessed abuse as children.

—Abusers generally are very possessive of their wives or lovers, forbidding their mates from going out alone and accusing them of being or wanting to be unfaithful. They may regard the abused women as their property. Often beneath a tough "macho" image, they feel unloved and something less than "a real man."

—Families involved in spouse abuse come from every walk of life, including every social, economic and racial group, all ages, all educational levels, non-married as well as married couples.

—Although spouse abuse is a serious crime, it is seldom recognized or treated as such. Help to couples who are struggling with the problem of domestic violence is not readily available. Generally, police do not arrest the abuser, nor do they protect the victim. Prosecution is seldom completed. Injunctions to restrain the abuser are rarely issued. Law enforcers and judges still are unaware of Michigan's Spouse Abuse legislation, or they choose not to use it. In addition, physicians and nurses may not acknowledge the injuries sustained from spouse; or, if they do, they avoid discussing it with their patients. Furthermore, counseling agencies have waiting lists; and counseling may not be available at the time of crisis. Shelters for women and children still are not established in all areas; and existing shelters are unable to meet all of the demands.

In announcing the study results, UCS President Jane E. Moeller indicated that the organization has adopted a comprehensive plan to address the problem of spouse abuse through implementation of a series of general and specific recommendations.

"It is an ambitious project," Ms. Moeller admitted, "since it involves turning a whole society around in attitudes, behavior, professional practice and community services."

Hazel Schaller, RN, feted on retirement

A recent retirement luncheon paid honor to Hazel Schaller who completed close to 30 years of nursing service at Rogers City Hospital in Rogers City, Mich.

Born and raised in New Boston and a 1933 graduate of Belleville High School, Ms. Schaller earned her R.N. degree from Bronson Hospital in Kalamazoo in 1937 after completing a 3-year diploma program. She then worked at Wayne County General Hospital until 1942 when she entered the U.S. Army Nurse Corps during World War II.

Following her discharge from the service, she purchased property on Lake May in Hawks, Mich. and went north to live in 1949. At Alpena General Hospital she worked in surgery until the Rogers City Hospital opened and she was hired as a nursing supervisor and assisted in setting up its operating room.

Taking a leave of absence, she attended special training classes in anesthesia at Grace Hospital in Detroit. On her return to Rogers City Hospital, she worked as a certified registered nurse anesthetist and had other regular nursing duties as well.

During her years at the hospital, she served as director of nursing in the extended care facility and for the last several years had been director of nursing on the acute care side of the hospital.

The sister of Mrs. Bertha Thompson of Belleville, Ms. Schaller's retirement was marked with a luncheon prepared by her fellow employees and a special cake baked by Della Blair of the radiology department.

W. B. Gebeau, senior vice-president of Cheboygan-Presque Isle Health Care, Inc., read a certificate of appreciation which had been written especially for Ms. Schaller. Pam Mac Falda, assistant director of nursing, presented the honored guest with a corsage which along with the hospital's gift of a $500 savings bond and several individual presents, also added to Ms. Schaller's farewell.

Mandi Lynn cause for joy at Joye home

"And baby makes three..." is the tune being hummed around the Belleville home of Edwin (Bud) and Delores Joye of 23355 Haggerty Road these late winter days.

The cause of their "joy" is the arrival of their first child, a baby girl, on Feb. 5 at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. Making her debut at 6:02 a.m., the new heiress Mandi Lynn, weighed 7 lbs., - 11½ ozs. and measured 18½ inches.

The proud grandparents include two Belleville couples: Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Joye Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. James Keller. Great-grandparent honors go to Hallie Caldwell and Maggie Anderson of Belleville and Ada Maynor of South Carolina.

The new mother is the former Delores Keller.

Wheat germ brunch wreath

There's nothing like a freshly baked, wheat germ bread to make breakfast or brunch special. The sweet, yeasty aroma and fresh homemade taste are simply irresistible! The enjoyment derived from baking and serving your own specialty breads makes the effort well worthwhile. This bread recipe developed in the Kretschmer Consumer Kitchen combines wholesome, top quality ingredients with streamlined preparation techniques for utmost satisfaction.

The beautiful design of this wreath shaped bread is the first thing you'll notice. Patterned with fine stripes of filling and finished with a glossy glaze, it looks like the product of a gourmet bakery. The basic sweet dough itself is heartily enriched with wheat germ, and flavored with cinnamon and lemon peel. The filling combines almond paste with more wheat germ. No wonder it tastes so festive and delectable! The secret to its good looks is in rolling, filling, cutting and twisting the dough — not difficult at all with the easy to follow directions. A lemon glaze drizzled on after baking brings out the citrus accents in the bread. This bread is best served warm. It reheats amazingly well.

The home baker can make breads that are wholesome both inside and out by using a basic, natural ingredient — wheat germ. By furnishing protein, minerals, vitamins as well as natural food fiber, wheat germ contributes a lot towards maintaining a well balanced diet. And wheat germ is so effortless to use. Just measure and mix it straight from its vacuum packed, screw cap jar.

Wheat Germ Brunch Wreath

2 packages active dry yeast
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup warm water (105 degrees to 115 degrees)

2 tablespoons melted butter
1 egg
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1½ teaspoons grated lemon peel
2 to 2½ cups flour
¼ cup vacuum packed wheat germ, regular or sugar & honey
½ cup almond paste
3 tablespoons half and half
Lemon Glaze

Combine yeast and sugar in large bowl. Add water stirring to dissolve. Mix in butter, egg, salt, cinnamon and lemon peel. Beat in 2 cups flour. Stir in ½ cup wheat germ. Add remaining flour if needed to make soft dough which leaves sides of bowl. Knead on lightly floured surface 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to coat all sides. Cover. Let rise in warm, draft free place about 1½ hours or until doubled. Meanwhile, beat almond paste to soften. Stir in half and half and remaining ¼ cup wheat germ. Roll dough on lightly floured surface to 24 x 10-inch rectangle. Spread evenly with almond paste mixture. Starting with long side, roll up dough jelly roll fashion. Pinch long edge to seal. Cut roll in half lengthwise. Loosely twist strips together with cut sides up. Carefully move to greased baking sheet. Shape into 9-inch wreath, pinching ends to seal. Let rise in warm place about 1½ hours or until almost doubled. Bake in 350 degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove from baking sheet to rack. Drizzle with lemon glaze. Serve warm. Makes 1 (9-inch) wreath.

LEMON GLAZE: Mix until smooth ½ cup powdered sugar with 2 to 3 teaspoons lemon juice.

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Having spent the past weekend in Evanston (just north of the Windy City) and just fresh from Krochs and Brentano's (a chain of book emporiums in that territory) I've a gift suggestion to make for those of you with new parents in your midst.

For those young couples who have EVERYTHING (now that the new heir or heiress has arrived), "Baby Taming" by Peter Mayle is a cute and mighty clever way of letting those "sweet innocents" know what they'll be in for with their ascendancy to parenthood.

Not being able to pass up a book store, the daughters-three and yours truly had their usual good time checking out the Travel in England section (for Carol), Vegetarian Cookbook table (for Sue) and Restaurant Guides (for ol' mom). Lu, in the meantime, was into tomes for do-it-yourself foods for babies when she chanced upon the aforementioned "training guide" complete with devilishly-faced cherubs drawn by Arthur Robins.

Needing a thank-you goodie for a baby-sitting friend, Lu came home with the big, square reader which we all chuckled over. Those of you already attuned to infant-antics will understand the fly leaf's opening gambit — "How did you ever think that that little monster who has taken over your whole life was going to be a blessing? Well, a new baby can be a wondrous thing, but only if you are in control! Once you let the cunning creature have its way, you might as well say goodbye to your freedom."

From having to deal with food flung to the four corners of the kitchen or a non-stop crying attack, the witty and candid text and humorous illustrations can not only help parents maintain their sense of humor but gives specific instructions four counter attacks and preventative measures.

One of the opening paragraphs reads thusly — Babies are blessed with astonishing organizational abilities. No one knows how they did it from their cribs, but they managed to set up the world's most successful and longrunning public relations campaign.

More insidious and effective than anything the CIA could dream up, this worldwide conspiracy has been operating against unsuspecting men and women for years! Encouraged by big business, the pediatric branch of the medical profession, organized religion and umpteen million grandparents, we are led to believe the arrival of a baby is a joyous and carefree event. We are promised it will add another dimension to our lives — and it DOES but not the one advertised!

Babies (it continues) are not helpless, innocent creatures! Beneath wrinkled, rosy exteriors lurk minds and instincts of seasoned guerilla fighters determined to force you, the parent, into unconditional surrender — no holds barred, no weapon too ghastly to be used against you. Pre-dawn attacks are commonplace as are assaults with loaded diapers. And earpiercing battle cries are just the beginning of a war.

On second thought, this book should be presented when baby darlin' has been around awhile. Brand new, head-in-the clouds mamas and daddies just wouldn't believe that cuddly little bairn could possibly evolve into a challenging teeny monster.

TIDBITS FOR A LULL IN THE CONVERSATION (courtesy TV's "Hollywood Squares") — In case you're wondering which women in the world has the biggest pocketbook (the richest gal), it's recently-abdicated Queen Juliana of the Netherlands.

And — did you know the elephant is 70 percent water? (And, as George Gobel replied, "That's why he makes so many stops while going through the forest.")

If you've ever stopped to give it any thought, "lullaby" is said to be the most beautiful word in the English language (love and mellifluous running close seconds.)

And the biggest money-making movie of all time (as of February, 1980) is "Star Wars" (and sorry, but our seven bucks weren't part of the record.)

THIS DAY IN HISTORY: February 27: If you run into him, you might remember to wish Ralph Nader a happy birthday; it's Nader's natal day. And — had you been alive in his lifetime, you might have done likewise to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

If you, too, missed it in all its best seller moments-of-glory some dozen years back, "Topaz" is well worth the effort of tracking down. Check your local library, the book shelves at friends' homes or even buy the paperback if you're a foreign intrigue biggie.

Leon Uris (of "Exodus", "Battle Cry" and "Mila 18" fame), a master storyteller, centers his tale on the missile build-up in Cuba and the international diplomatic maneuverings that finally expose the secretive scheme.

A mere 341 pages, it not only is well written but believably and frighteningly so — particularly since we, once again, are dealing with the USSR's brashness, this time in Afghanistan.

A definite "must" for those seeking something fast moving with the flavor of espionage.

Just never realized what a lazy person I am until I tuned into the Winter Olympics and watched not only the live and taped action but those behind-the-scenes, at-home stories on the athletes.

The hours and hours spent daily in conditioning their bodies and then subjecting themselves to what must be a monotonous regimen of practice, exercise, routines, and discipline. (And I can barely manage 15 minutes of a few paltry bends and stretches each day.)

Those sketches on the athlete's lives make you sympathize all the more with those who, at the final moment, are unable to fulfill the roles for which they've so gruelingly trained.

If you didn't try our featured recipe "Lemon Cheese Squares" in Suburban Living a couple weeks back, you missed a delicious and simple dessert. Having put it together for a recent potluck party (mainly cuz I had all the ingredients on hand) I can attest to its attractiveness and appeal. And, having had blueberry topping in the pantry rather than the called-for cherry stuff, that's what the dessert eaters got. It's all a matter of preference, and LCS is a very versatile recipe.

THE BOTTOM LINE: Romance is like a game of chess; one false move and you're mated. (Included with tongue-in-cheek only cuz it's Leap Year.)

Tips on maple syrup uses

Bring out the rich taste of fresh vegetables with a beautiful glaze and the hearty flavor of Log Cabin syrup. Take 3 medium acorn squash, cut in halves, remove seeds and place, cut side down, in baking dish with enough boiling water to cover bottom of dish. Bake at 400 degrees for about 30 minutes.

Turn cut side up in pan. Then place 1-2 tablespoons syrup and 1/2 tablespoon butter in each cavity. Sprinkle with salt and nutmeg and continue baking 20 to 30 minutes longer or until squash is tender, basting once or twice with syrup.

Try combining 1/2 cup Log Cabin syrup with 3 tablespoons butter or margarine in skillet. Bring to a boil and simmer about 2 minutes. Then add 1 pound cooked carrots cut into 3- or 4-inch pieces. Cook, turning frequently, until carrots are glazed, about 10 minutes.

Probably no vegetable goes to the table oftener than does the onion. Whether you're serving it whole or sliced, or using it chopped, diced or grated as a seasoner, the onion is indispensable. We tend to overlook it, however, as the basis of a unique lower cost entree which helps to balance the budget yet provides hearty, good eating.

Scoop out the centers of 4 very large peeled onions which have been parboiled for 10 to 15 minutes in salted water. Chop the centers and saute in 3 tablespoons butter until tender. Stir in 2 cups finely chopped cooked ham, 2 cups soft bread crumbs and a dash of pepper. Spoon this mixture into onion shells. Meanwhile, simmer 1/2 cup Log Cabin syrup and 3 tablespoons butter in skillet 2 minutes.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes, basting several times with syrup mixture.

LEGAL NOTICES

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
IN RE: Amendment to Miscellaneous Matter 80-050

Local Rule IX (n) (1)
The United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit has requested that the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan make "findings of fact with respect to the promulgation of the changes in (Local Rule IX (n) (1)) and the notice thereto. Specific findings concerning the circumstances of the rule change and whether notice was given to the Bar are in order. As this issue may arise on many occasions, an evidentiary hearing should be held and a cross-section of the Eastern District Bar should be allowed to present their views."

It appears that the amendment to Local Rule IX (n) (1) decreasing the time to file a motion for rehearing from 20 days to 10 days was not promptly published in the appropriate newspapers, although the amendment was pasted into all copies of the Local Rules sold and distributed from the Clerk's Office after October 1977. An opportunity is given to members of the Bar to respond in writing to the Clerk not later than Friday, March 7, 1980, RE: Miscellaneous Matter 80-050 In Re: Amendment to Local Rule IX (n) (1), either in general concerning their awareness of notice or lack of notice of the amendment to Rule IX (n) (1), or in particular, any experience a member of the Bar may have had with the amendment which might be related to lack of adequate notice of the amendment.

On NEW mortgages, we at Century 21 ABC Realty, are still able to get you 12 percent to 13 1/2 percent. We are in constant contact with lending institutions and there are those who still have the mortgage rates that many banks and savings and loans USED to have. But, the interest market is definitely on the way up, we believe. Now is the time to buy. Those who thought that last year's rates were too high and decided to wait, are now looking at higher rates. In our opinion, the same will happen as inflation keeps going on. Call today.

In Michigan

March 'blows in' good times

From court side to high above the center ring ... from a box seat to the sugar bush, March "blows in" a "lion's share" of good times in Michigan.

The Shrine Circus keeps the best of P.T. Barnum's three rings alive and well with the cream of the world's performers. Daring young men and women on the flying trapeze, lions, tigers and elephants, sad faced clowns, peanuts and cotton candy, yours to enjoy when the Shrine Circus comes to the Michigan Exposition and Fairgrounds Coliseum in Detroit March 14-30.

Elaborate costumes, the flash of silver blades and impressive choreography have made the Ice Capades an annual favorite that continues to delight every age. The 1980 edition comes to Wings Stadium in Kalamazoo March 12-16. This year's theme is "Make a Wish" and brings favorite Mother Goose characters to entertaining life.

The 1980 National Indoors Speed Skating Championships will bring more ice skating thrills March 21-23 at Yack Arena in Wyandotte.

NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships provide fast paced competition on firmer footing March 14 and 15 at the new Joe Louis arena in Detroit. Athletes from approximately 300 schools from across the nation will vie for top honors. Time trials are scheduled for Friday during the day. The races follow on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon.

This year, Central Michigan University has the honor of hosting the nation's ranking women's basketball teams. The AIAW National Basketball Championships are scheduled for March 21 and 23 at Rose Arena in Mt. Pleasant. The two best teams battle for the championship title on Sunday, and if you're a basketball fan, you'll want to be at courtside.

The Special Olympics Basketball tournament will present a different style of competition, but equally exciting. The tournament will be held at Macomb Community College in Warren, with a victory banquet and dance at the competition's conclusion. This tournament will have no losers, only winning achievers.

For those not into athletics, why not try a little treasure hunting? Antiques and collectibles from plain to fancy, serviceable to frivolous will be plentiful at several antique shows coming up. The World Antique Show will be at Lansing's Civic Center March 1-2. The Spring Antique Show and Sale follows March 12-16 at Detroit's Light Guard Armory, and the Michigan Antiques Show and Sale closes the month — March 28-30 — at Crisler Arena, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Then, there's the opportunity to taste spring's first sweet signs during Maple Sugaring Weekend March 15-16 at Kalamazoo's Nature Center. Tour the sugar bush, and the sugar house and watch while the sap is turned into syrup and maple sugar. Maple Syrup Tours are scheduled for every Sunday during March at the Chippewa Nature Center, Midland. The Cranbrook Institute of Science, Bloomfield Hills, will hold its Maple Syrup Festival March 8-9, 15-16, 22-23 and 29-30.

Michigan stages are bright with talent and entertaining productions this month. "The Play's the Thing", a comedy romance written by Ferenc Molnar and adapted by P.G. Wodehouse comes to the Meadowbrook Theatre at Oakland University, Rochester beginning March 27.

The Kalamazoo Civic Players present the Broadway smash "Purlie" March 28-30 at the Carver Center, Kalamazoo, and two 1-act plays, "Johnny and Wilma" and "Shock of Recognition" will be offered by the Players Guild of Dearborn March 7, 8, and 9 at the Guild Theatre.

For music lovers there's the Bach Festival March 1, 2, and 8 at Stetson Chapel, Kalamazoo College, Kalamazoo, the Julliard String Quartet, March 4 at Fairchild Theatre, MSU, East Lansing, or an evening of familiar classics with the Saginaw Symphony Orchestra at Saginaw's Civic Center March 9. Pianist Gary Graffman will guest with the Kalamazoo Symphony on March 18 at Kalamazoo's Miller Auditorium.

To keep in touch with all the fun of Michigan during March, write for your free copy of the Michigan Calendar of Travel Events available from the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce, P.O. Box 30226, Lansing 48909.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By VAL CAREW

BURT'S AGE - Please tell me the year Burt Reynolds was born and also where I may write him? Thank you. - Veronica Perez, Chicago, Ill.

Burt was born in 1936, which makes him 44 this year. He was born in Waycross, Ga., but raised in Florida. He has a production office, Burt Reynolds Productions, 8730 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90069. You can write him there. However, Burt is one of those traveling actors, who might be appearing at his Jupiter, Fla., dinner theater or making a film in Europe. He might even be in the office the day your letter arrives. He is actually there occasionally. I heard of a writer calling and wanting to talk to him. She called his assistant, who wasn't in. Burt answered the telephone and took the message; the writer never knew she was talking to Burt himself. No, it wasn't me.

CRYING U.N.C.L.E. - What was the character's name that David McCallum played on "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."? I recall Robert Vaughn played Napoleon Solo. Also, how old is McCallum today? - J. MacDonald, Alexandria, La.

David played Ilya Kuriakin. He was born in 1933, making him 47 this year.

FONDA HIM - I am having a big argument with a friend. I say many years ago

Henry Fonda starred in a Western TV series, and my friend says I'm crazy. I don't think I am. - Michael Thomas, Lubbock, Texas

You're not crazy at all. Fonda played a character named Simon Fry in a series called "The Deputy." Fonda was the marshal, and the deputy was Clay McCord, played by Allen Case. It was a 30-minute series on NBC from Sept. 12, 1959 to Sept. 16, 1961. Then it was syndicated.

For brides and grooms

Styles reflect Edwardian period's romance

The romance of the Edwardian era has captured the imagination of today's modern bride. Spring brides will glide down the aisle in drifts of satin, folds of silken jersey and snowy clouds of chiffon. The captivating opulence of the late 19th century has been translated into a richness and a new softness that has been missing for many seasons.

Once again the leading bridal designers have made creative lace application their hallmark. Alencon lace, English nettings and Bristol lace are worked into delicate tracery, from tiny cameos that frame the face to frothy hems. Borrowing from the ladies of King Edward's court, the designers have brought the sweeping elegance of the period to the 20th century. Silhouettes remain simple and yet regal, with "Lilly Langtry" necklines newest, in a squared shape that makes the most of graceful necks and beautiful shoulders. Queen Anne necklines softly frame the face, while demure V's make a new statement.

The return of the natural waistline and a feeling of controlled slimness echoes the Edwardian influence.

Begun last spring, the mixing of ivory and white lace continues to lend a delicate color blending. Ivory lace cameos are worked on satiny silhouettes. English netting is frosted with tiny dew drops of pearls and crystals for the glow of sun and new fallen snow. Scroll work in tiny pearls adds interest at the hemline. Even white fox creates its own magic as a snowy accent at the cuffs and tops a drift of illusion veiling headdress.

Authorities on the fashion picture, such as Barbara Tober, editor in chief of Bride's Magazine; Edith Piccione of Alfred Angelo Bridal Gowns; and Bernie Toll, spokesman for After Six Formals, concur that this season's fashion statement is richer in quality and detail than previous seasons' offerings.

"The feeling of refinement and luxury prevails — fabrics are soft and clinging for brides, but there also is a great deal of lace and re-applied lacework. The bishop sleeve and other feminine touches, such as the scoop and Queen Anne neckline, are very popular," Piccione said. "The color choice seems to be candlelight ivory in preference to the traditional pure white. Either one is beautiful in the new styles."

Of formal wear for grooms, Toll observed: "There was a demand for dignity and a return to elegance from the young people planning weddings. Our designers worked to produce different approaches in formalwear to satisfy the need for individual expression of taste."

The memory of a rite which will never dim is there for the bride-elect and her groom to create together as they select appropriate fashions and make their plans, the fashion authorities concluded. So, this season's bride and groom will be an elegant, she wearing a gown and headdress designed for keepsakes and treasures.

Love ring: Swearing 'undying devotion'

Lovers since time immemorial have sworn of their undying love and devotion to each other in sonnets, songs and love letters, and the most popular token of love and devotion has been the finger ring.

While the exact origin of the ring as a token of love lies buried in the mist of time, it is noted that in ancient Greek mythology, the circle was the sign of love—

There have been many famous rings down through the ages, with the first diamond engagement ring from Emperor Maximilian to Mary of Burgundy perhaps being the most famous.

However, the oldest love or eternity ring, dating from 2000 B.C., was unearthed in 1922, around the same time that King Tutankhamun's tomb was discovered.

The greatest and richest archeological discovery since the Tut tombs in Egypt, the Royal Tombs of Ur, as they were called, were located near the Euphrates river in southern Iraq.

The systematic excavations that were carried out by an expedition, co-sponsored by the London British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania, brought to light the opulent Royal Tombs.

The tomb of Queen Shubad was cause for the greatest excitement and revealed what must have been one of the first eternity, or love, rings.

The Queen lay in state in a spacious burial chamber, richly robed in a gown covered with gold beads, silver, lapis lazuli, cornelian, agate and chalcedony.

In addition to her golden headdress and golden hair comb, she wore a necklace of precious stones, and on her royal finger was the love ring.

It is a simple band of gold, decorated with an undulating cloisonne line accented with precious stones.

Down through the years, the love ring has changed with the diamond replacing the other colored gemstones.

Why the diamond? Perhaps because it best typifies love — rare, precious and everlasting.

Diamonds are millions of years old—dating back to before the dawn of man, when the earth began to cool. They are the hardest substance known and like true love, resist destruction.

Today's eternity, or love, ring is a circlet of diamonds, set in either white gold or platinum, and it tells the same story that Queen Shubad's ring told four millennia ago—love is everlasting.

Hotel, the jewel of the Renaissance Center on the river.

The 1,400-room, 73-story hotel can get you away from it all without any of the travel.

If you've never visited the Plaza, the architectural scheme and interior design will be enough to keep you entertained, and marvelling. An 8-story atrium lobby, complete with half-acre lake and park greenery, is a "visual feast," as hotel officials like to put it.

And there are 13 restaurants and lounges scattered throughout the hotel, offering tastes for all tastes, from the Summit, which includes revolving cocktail lounge on the 73rd floor, to the more casual Coffee Garden.

Guests can enjoy the health club and swimming pool, complete with exercise room, saunas and even a massuer service available.

The hotel also is filled with shops, offering men's and women's fashions, books and records, toys, jewelry, and artwork and furniture.

The Western International Hotels chains, which owns the Plaza, lists in its directory the rates for the hotel. A double "standard" rooms runs $61, a "medium" room $69 and "deluxe" room $77. You can have a suite for $90 to $150, and the top of the line is the 2-bedroom suite, the most expensive of which is $220.

Although there's plenty to do in the hotel complex itself, you also can venture to downtown music, food and entertainment sites.

The weekend certainly will get you away from it all — without travelling far at all.

Letting us know

You've decided it's time to tell the whole world the good news, but how? The diamond ring tells part of the story, but what about the details?

For brides-to-be and the new Mrs., who want to share that "special day" with others, Associated Newspapers offers bridal questionnaires, as well as engagement forms for announcing the "start of it all".

When filling out the forms we ask that names — first and last — be printed to avoid misspellings and that proper titles of places of employment, schools, clubs and other social affiliations be used.

We also ask that addresses include the city and state. Such a simple
